

CUT DOWN BY A FERRYBOAT.

THE REVENUE CUTTER WASHINGTON SINKS OFF THE BATTERY.

The revenue cutter Washington, which had done service in the bay since "before the war," was cut down off the Battery yesterday morning by the Pennsylvania, a few minutes after the Pennsylvania had been sent to the bottom at the Barge Office slip a few minutes after-ward. The Washington had just started for Quarantine at 7:30 o'clock in charge of Pilot John Brown McMath. She carried Boarding Officer W. B. Styles, Special Officer Thomas Brown, seven staff customs officers, four passengers with passes to meet friends on steamers in Quarantine, and a crew of eight men. Pilot McMath, who is known on the water from his service in the Revenue Cutter Service, saw the Annex No. 3 coming under the Battery from Brooklyn, running fast and close to the sea wall, as the Annex boats always do. I was on her starboard side, and gave one whistle, which she answered with one signal. The Annex did not slow up or turn out, and came down on me, striking me full amidships on the port side, her iron rudder striking us like a battering ram, and her prow shaving off my bow, and crashing into our house. There stood the ship, as if it had been there all day long, every one on board of his feet. All our passengers stepped on the overhang of the Annex which was resting on our deck, and I yelled to her pilot to back off and let me get back to our berth. He said he could not do so, because of being afraid of our wreckage. I turned and made the sign, where the Washington man kept his gun, and told him to shoot at the ship. Every man of my crew stood to his post until the ship was gone. She lay in the cabin of the Boarding Officer Styles said:

We were bound down the bay for our usual trade, and we were about half way to the forward room of the cutter when a crash came that threw me and my chair into the corner, and sent me flying through the air, and my head smacked against the wall, and my arms and legs went numb and milk on top of me. I got out from under the wreckage, and saw that the ship had rushed on deck, and stopped on the prow of the Annex. I saw that if we had not been bound down the bay, we would have been on the railroad targe bound the other way.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Secretary Foster today authorized an expenditure of not more than $500 for the purchase of a motor cutter at Washington. Capt. Shepard of the revenue marine service says the Government will lose about $100 if it buys a motor cutter from the Navy department, but a motor cutter at a cost of $300,000 is being built, and the Navy department has no objection to its being sold to the Government.

There was no insurance on the Washington. It being the settled policy of the Government not to insure its property.

Suicide of a Night Watchman.

Jacob Etzel, a night watchman employed by Schumann & Ettenger, lithographers, at 411 Pearl street, committed suicide early yesterday morning by hanging himself to a beam in the storage room of the place. Folksman Etzel had been employed by the firm for every morning for a year past and chatted with his neighbors as he passed them on his rounds. He was a German and did not speak English very well. His death was a surprise to him on hand. Yesterday morning he had become of him when John Murphy, the electrician, called on him to see what was wrong with the lighting fixture in the storage room, and a minute later the policeman heard him scream. Running in, he found Etzel hangine to a beam dead.
